Recycling Facility's New Website

The Springfield Materials Recycling Facility (MRF) has a new website for residents, schools, and municipal officials in western Massachusetts. The new site, www.springfieldmrf.org, includes information about what can be recycled, a video on recycling, pictures of the recycling facility and materials prepared for recycling, frequently asked questions, and links for schools and students studying recycling.

“The new site was put together specifically as a resource on recycling for western Massachusetts communities,” said Michael Pattavina, Waste Mgmt Coordinator for West Springfield. “Teachers and students often call us about statistics and information on recycling and now they can use this website in their educational pursuits. It’s very user friendly for residents, too.”

The website was a joint effort of the MRF Advisory Board and the MA Department of Environmental Protection. The MRF Advisory Board represents municipal interests in the operation of the Springfield Materials Recycling Facility and sponsors educational programs about recycling.
